THE NATION'S HEROES.

Colorado Springs Appropriately Observes Memorial Day.

Flag Presentation by the Patriotic Order Sons of America.

A Splendid Parade of Military and Civic Societies.

Exercises at the Cemetery, Including an Address by Gen. Prentiss.

Yesterday was one of the grandest days in the history of Colorado Springs. With every succeeding year the number of the graves in Evergreen cemetery in which are buried the soldiers of the late war increase, and with every succeeding year the interest in Memorial day in creases. The local post of the G. A. R. had made extensive preparations for the memorial exercises yesterday, but extensive as they were they were hardly equal to the occasion, for no one had reason to expect any such an attendance. The morning broke fair and bright, and nature itself seemed in sympathy with the grand occasion. Early in the morning the preparations began, and soon the streets of the city along which the parade would move were bright with flags and banners. From every flag staff in the city floated the national colors at half mast.

As announced the day's programme opened with the presentation of a flag to the pupils of the High school by Washington Camp P. O. S. of A. of this city. The members of the camp had [illegible] memorial day as an appropriate time for the presentation, when the hearts of American citizens turn to thoughts of patriotism and expression is given to the love of country. Promptly at 8 o'clock the members of the order repaired to the [illegible] school [illegible], where the exercises were held. A large crowd had collected [illegible] of the pupils of the city school's. Company A, Separate Troop, C. N. G., and citizens. The exercises began at 8:15, and were opened with prayer by Rev. J. B. Gregg. The [illegible] of the P. O. S. of A., Mr. C. L. Gillispie, [illegible] the presentation speech. The address was brief but very [illegible] to the point. He dwelt particularly upon the sentiment which the flag conveys to every patriotic heart, and the response which this sentiment calls forth when the country exists for rallying to its defense and honor. The flag was presented with the hope that it would lead the pupils to a greater appreciation of its meaning. It was hoped that when [illegible] above their building they would look upon it with growing patriotism. He hoped if ever in after years they were called upon to rally to its defense they would see that it suffered no dishonor. He then formally presented the flag.

Mr. Harry McAllister, on behalf of the pupils of the school, [illegible] the city. His address, both in substance and in its delivery, would have been a credit to almost any public speaker in the land. In closing Mr. McAllister said: "Gentlemen, again we thank you for the lesson in patriotism you have given us, for this magnificent flag which we will display on all suitable occasions from this citadel of learning, where it will always remind us of your kindness, of the great principles it represents, principles which we will cherish whilst we live and for the preservation of which we will gladly die."

At the close of his address the handsome flag was raised upon the flagstaff above the building and floated proudly in the morning breeze. During the exercises the Fifteen's band played "The Star Spangled Banner," and other national airs. A double quartette sang "Our Flag is There," and at the close "America" was sung by the audience, all joining with a will. Rev. Mr. Gregg then pronounced the benediction. The various organizations present that were to participate in the memorial ceremonies then dispersed.

The parade which escorted the G. A. R. post to the cemetery was without doubt the most imposing that has ever been seen on the streets of this city. It formed on Nevada avenue in front of the city hall with the right resting on Huerfano [illegible]. Comrade L. C. Dana, marshal of the day, and his aids deserve [illegible] able credit, for the way in which the large body was handled. The following was the course over which it moved after leaving Nevada avenue: West on Pike's Peak avenue to Tejon street, north on Tejon to Bijou, west on Bijou to Cascade avenue, south on Cascade avenue to Pike's Peak, east on Pike's Peak to Tejon, south on Tejon to the Denver, Texas and Fort Worth railway, where cars were taken to the cemetery. At the [illegible] school house on Cascade avenue the children of the public school joined the parade with their arms filled with flowers. This was a novelty in parades in this city, and was one of the prettiest and most appropriate features of the day. When the parade was finally completed it was moving in the following order: City marshal and platoon of police, Marshal of the Day Dana and Chief Fenlin of the fire department in command of the first division, the military band, Company A mounted, carriage containing Mayor Stillman, General B. M. Prentiss and Chaplain Keiffer, Colorado Springs Post No. 22, G. A. R. headed by the drum corps, with over a hundred men in line, division number two, commanded by Mr. George Southcotte, came next, as follows: Uniform Rank Myrtle lodge Knights of Pythias, Canon Colfax Patriarch Militant, Pike's Peak lodge I. O. O. F., Select Knights A. O. U. W., and [illegible] lodge, Superintendent Busey, teachers and pupils of the [illegible]

[illegible] Day was observed there [illegible] was conducted by Mr. [illegible] Gorman and [illegible] full uniform. [illegible] America. [illegible] Matt Frazee Post, [illegible] B. F. Clark [illegible] Company. [illegible] Hose company [illegible] citizens on foot and [illegible] The streets were lined with people throughout the length of the parade.

There was some labor during the at every of the cemetery, as the crowd was so much larger than anticipated and the team was compelled to make four trips instead of three. The road to the cemetery was also lined with people in carriages on foot back and on foot during the whole of the morning. It is estimated that fully 3,000 persons were on the grounds at the time of the beginning of the exercises. Arriving at the cemetery gates the veterans moved with solemn tread to the portion of the cemetery set apart for the burial of old soldiers with the drum corps playing the Dead March in Saul. It was a solemn and pathetic scene. A square was formed about the graves and the exercises began. After music by the military band a chorus sang, and Major Otis Hemick, commander of the post read the order promulgated for the exercises of the day. Rev. A. R. Kieffer offered prayer and conducted the service for the dead according to the ritual of the order.

Company A fired three volleys over the graves according to custom. The graves were then decorated by the school children. All of the soldiers buried in the cemetery do not rest in the G. A. R. plot, so that a member of the order accompanied the children from the different schools and they went throughout the city of the dead placing the flowers. There were flowers in profusion for all. The soldiers detailed were as follows: High school, J. W. Channon, Garfield school, D. W. Robbins, Lincoln school, E. J. Smith, Hillside school, D. T. Hook.

The following is a list of the veterans buried in the cemetery:

J. F. McDonald, private, 7th Wisconsin battery.

John F. Hewitt, 21st New York battery.

Geo. W. Thomas, Company L, 12th Illinois infantry.

The graves of Martin Gillan and a soldier by the name of Joslin were also decorated. They are buried in Evergreen cemetery but were not members of the post, and their regiments are not known.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies at the graves, positions were taken in front of a platform which had been erected in a shaded position of the cemetery. The programme arranged for this part of the ceremony had to be greatly curtailed on account of the great delay in arrival. It consisted of music by the band, singing by the choir and an address by General B. M. Prentiss. Upon being introduced General Prentiss spoke for about thirty minutes, and his words were eagerly listened to. His remarks were in substance as follows:

Comrades and citizens:

Here [illegible] buried in the city of the dead, in the sunlight of heaven, in view of the mighty mountains, where nature has placed we with fitness what an appropriate time and place for the living to meet, pay tribute to and honor memories of the [illegible] that we [illegible] light [illegible] independent nation. It is a duty we owe to self and country to annually [illegible] and perform, in accordance with instructions the beautiful ceremonies inaugurated by comrades that posterity may not forget the cost of a nation so grand as this. Let us this day strive to impress the necessity of purity of thought and friendship to each as American citizens, living under one government and one flag. That we may as such grow in strength that no country, no individual, nor class shall dare attempt to inaugurate or organize to introduce ideas tending to change the form of government in this land of the free.

For it our comrades suffered. For it a million lives were given. For it four thousand million of treasure have been expended. [illegible] of maimed, crippled and [illegible] Mothers, fathers and kindred mourn and yet do they [illegible] understand the sacrifice for the [illegible]. We can this day in the presence of the living [illegible] spirit where we [illegible] our number [illegible] right and despise wrong. [illegible] to maintain liberty the boon of the [illegible] constitutions founded of the people [illegible] from by the recommendation of this day. They should be [illegible] and [illegible] work the truth that with the lifetime of some [illegible] people who [illegible] the road [illegible] honors [illegible] side of [illegible].

[illegible] Comrades for American [illegible] on the battle fields anywhere where to [illegible] the reasons of noble dead and renew their [illegible] manhood in the nation, for which [illegible] perished. As we thus perform the duty of the day we build for posterity. We [illegible] monuments [illegible]. We can [illegible] the times and study of the past with [illegible] joyous at the power and prosperity of the present. We can forgive we cannot forget nor should posterity be permitted to forget the [illegible] suffering results of an effort to divide a union of states. As we build on patriotism we build strong upon the foundation of truth, and public charity, and loyalty to and should continue to be the link to bind us as true Americans to our country and our flag, and thus honor the influence of true liberty will spread until mankind every where will behold the beauty and acknowledge the power and benefit of a free and independent nation based upon the truth that all persons are created equal. Amid the solemnity of to day we can rejoice at the mighty progress made since the great struggle for nationality caused. Increase of states building of cities, railways, schools churches, etc., the fear of disbanding the army and command the north, south, east and west interests alike.

Comrades amid the strife for place, power and wealth so prevalent in this progressive age, we can afford to warn the erring that it is our purpose to strengthen and protect from calumny the memories of comrades resting from strife, suffering and death, endured that the nation might live. Let us persevere in duties to maintain loyalty, strengthen the ties of friendship as essential to peace and prosperity, cultivate due observance of law and at all times advocate justice. When we shall have joined the army of comrades who have preceded us beyond, then our toiling will have ceased, and although other men will occupy our places, other voices raising praises of country; it may be centuries will roll on and ere the defenders of the nation will have been forgotten. Our numbers diminish rapidly, the time will soon come when the last answer will be given to our roll call. God grant that others may take interest in perpetuating the ceremonies of this day, to the end that generations to follow will increase in patriotism and loyalty till bound with ties of friendship and love of justice so strong that the voice of demagogues will be silenced, the flag respected and liberty prevail.

And now great emblem of the brave,
With proud head will stand,
Ready to battle, ready to save
The pride and [illegible] of our [illegible]

Wave o'er the million [illegible] high,
Wave o'er the hall and lane,
We swore, we battle till we die,
To save the [illegible] I faint.

This closed the memorial exercises which are conceded to have been the most successful ever held in El Paso county.

AT MANITOU AND COLORADO CITY.

The G. A. R. posts at both Manitou and Colorado City observed the day with appropriate ceremonies. At the first named city the exercises are reported to have been particularly beautiful and impressive.

AT MONUMENT.

Decoration Day dawned brightly at Monument. At an early hour the country people began to arrive and soon our streets presented a lively appearance. Everybody and his best girl, as well as the old folks and the children came in to aid in the celebration of the day. At one o'clock the procession headed by the Monument Cornet band started for the cemetery. Arriving there the usual ceremonies were performed after which the graves of the soldiers were tastefully decorated with wreaths of flowers. At the conclusion of the ceremonies the procession wended its way to the G. A. R. hall where Rev. C. E. Delong delivered the oration. Then followed the closing ceremonies by the members of the Colman post and the people dispersed. About two hundred strangers were present at the Decoration ceremonies. Many of them were from Table Rock, Eastonville, Elbert, Palmer Lake and Gwillimville.

GENERAL PRENTISS' LECTURE.

The rain which came up about seven o'clock yesterday evening prevented as large an attendance at the lecture delivered by General B. M. Prentiss, at the opera house, as would otherwise have been the case. However, there was a very fair audience in attendance, and no one who was present has any reason to regretted. General Prentiss was one of the prominent federal generals in the battle of Shiloh, as is well known, and his descriptions of it are thrilling in the extreme. The general has a style of delivery peculiarly his own. He loves to talk of the great battle, and at times waxes eloquent in telling of it. He denies vehemently many of the falsehoods told regarding it, particularly the one that General Grant did not appear upon the battlefield until late in the afternoon of the first day. He states also that the federals fired the first volley in the battle, although they were at least. He states that the union army was caught sleeping and attacked in its tents, and plainly shows how it was impossible for his command to have been captured as early in the day as has often been claimed. He did not surrender until completely surrounded and out of ammunition.

The lecture is filled with quaint stories and amusing incidents, and the audience fairly grew wild at times as it listened to their recitation. After the lecture the members of G. A. R. Post No. 22 tendered General Prentiss a reception in the post room, attended only by members of the order.

NEW YORK, May 30.—Early this morning did not give promise of a fair day as rain fell lightly at intervals. But as the morning wore on the rain ceased entirely and the sun at times almost broke through the cloudy. All the public buildings displayed flags at half mast, and there was a meagre display of bunting elsewhere. The parade started at 9 o'clock from Fifty-eighth street, the line of march being down Fifth avenue to Fourteenth street and then to Broadway, and around Union square. At Union square the Lincoln and Washington statues were beautifully adorned with flowers. The procession was led by General O. O. Howard with a battalion of marines.

The parade was reviewed by Governor Hill, Vice President Morton and Mayor Grant. After the parade the members of the G. A. R. went to the various cemeteries and decorated the graves of the dead soldiers.

Washington Visited by Thousands.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Although the weather prospects were dubious this morning the veterans of the late war turned out in good force to make the annual pilgrimages to Arlington, the Soldiers' Home and other grounds, where the remains of old comrades rest, and to pay tributes of respect and affection in the shape of floral offerings and suitable ceremonies. There was little evidence of business activity and the spirit of the day was tolerably well observed.

The Grand Army of the Republic concentrated its efforts upon Arlington, and [illegible] sentative of the administration at that place. General D. S. Alexander was the orator of the day and a poem was delivered by Eugene F. Ware of Kansas. Appropriate music was rendered by the Marine band and a salute was fired by a battery of artillery. General Sheridan's tomb was especially decorated by the ladies of the Potomac Relief corps. A monument to General Gabriel S. Paul was unveiled with an appropriate address by Chief Justice Charles Drake.

At the Soldiers' home Major S. S. Rockwood delivered the oration and Col. Dewitt Sprague read an original poem, while similar offices were performed at the Congressional cemetery by Hon. W. W. Curry and B. B. Fleming respectively. Flowers were strewn over General Logan's tomb by a committee of the Logan Guard of Honor. At St. Mathew's church mass was celebrated at 8 o'clock for the repose of the soul of the late General Sheridan and for the soldiers who fell in battle.

Denver's Observance.

DENVER, May 30.—Decoration day was properly observed here. All the federal, state, county and municipal offices and courts were closed together with all the banks and many places of business. During the morning there was a grand parade of the G. A. R. and all the societies after which several thousand people took special trains to Riverside where the graves were decorated.

Chicago's Observance.

CHICAGO, May 30.—A cold raw wind was blowing this morning. The sky was heavily overcast and later a drizzling rain began to fall. Nevertheless a large number of veterans marched to the various cemeteries to decorate graves of comrades.

Observance in Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, May 30.—Decoration day was duly observed by the American ladies resident here, who went to the United States cemetery provided with flowers and decorated the soldiers' monuments.

Decorating Graves.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—Decoration day was generally observed here as a holiday. The Grand Army posts decorated the graves in ninety six cemeteries hereabouts.

Vandalism in Louisiana.

NEW ORLEANS, May 30.—A case in the second [illegible] has caused a [illegible] fact that vandalism and its disgusting rites still have a foothold in Louisiana. For some time there have been promiscuous gatherings of whites and blacks in a house on St. Anthony street. Although in a retired locality the assemblages have become so noisy that they disturbed neighbors and at last the place became a nuisance and the police were informed. The result was that the police made a descent on the place while the orgies were in full swing.

A strange and disgusting sight met the officers' eyes. In a circle formed by eight white and six negro women and seven negro men, were a half breed Indian and a negro named Alexander, who [illegible]

O'Connor said when he took office in the league he found many of the books fragmentary and incorrect. It was impossible to do anything with them. He did not know whether the books which the government possessed during the administration of Chief Secretary Forster had been destroyed. Judge Hannen ordered inquiries to be made about these books. O'Connor replied as a calumny the suggestion that the tenants understood by a force to them to repel land grabbers, or to incite to murder or use violence upon them. He admitted, saying it was not unnatural that a man who saw his family flung into the roadside should shoot the evictor.

Justin McCarthy, a member of parliament testified to the horror and dismay which the Phoenix park murders caused among the Parnellites.

THE VICTIMS OF OBESITY.

How Fashionable Women Fight to Get Rid of Their Fat.

Observations on the Scourge of Fleshiness—Sea Bathing, Exercise and Dietetic Cures—How to Diminish Corpulence.

(Copyright 189[illegible].)

It is not so long since Hawthorne, in his book on English life, spoke of the stately and presentable girls who became offensive at middle age from their obesity. He said, in pointed language, that the bust of a British matron would make Rome howl. This was then supposed to be in violent contrast to our own land, where women were reputed to be more like inverted tubs with all the bones on top, but some time on modern methods of useful flesh elimination a month ago brought down on me not a snowstorm but an avalanche of letters, from women in all of loveliness of every height, age and [illegible].

With indoor life, sitting too often in [illegible], too free in going until night, embroidering, sewing or reading, eating [illegible] meals at irregular intervals, eating too much and too luxuriously, imbibing [illegible], walking little and that slowly, women often fatten themselves on an almost parallel to the artificial fattening of animals. Even when the mode of life is as rational, the quiet existence of [illegible] tends to corpulence [illegible] the violent functions of the human struggle for existence among men, [illegible] neither sex can claim exemption, [illegible] if the tendency to [illegible] is fat [illegible] sedentary.

Is it possible to reduce the flesh without injury to the age? It is not an exaggeration to say that there are in New York literally hundreds of women who have been stylish and graceful who were formerly noted for exquisite slenderness and who claim to have improved in health by the change. It is also an exaggeration to say that of the [illegible] of fashion who devote themselves to the cure of obesity and who have more patients and heavier incomes from the [illegible] prescription is almost any other [illegible] of medicine, there are no two who agree, few whom it does show any appreciable benefit. The specific of one is [illegible] of their medical treatment, of another a more varied and very rigid bathing [illegible] of yet, oil, the goddess of [illegible] Ex's system which is also a [illegible], but flies in the face of fasting.

A woman who has too much adipose may reduce it or she may diminish it. The latter case requires the help of no [illegible]. It is [illegible] that your own [illegible] how much you weigh. A [illegible] is said to be as old as she looks, and [illegible] is no [illegible] why she should not [illegible] if no [illegible] of [illegible] corpulent [illegible] and from ten to forty pounds to their [illegible] by improper [illegible] and [illegible] of the body. To compare the [illegible] which [illegible] the [illegible] which [illegible] can accumulate, up to exaggerated [illegible] here and down to add [illegible] to the lips is to make the figure as bad as it is capable of being. It chafes attention to the [illegible] and makes the [illegible] short, the [illegible] red and prominent [illegible] the eye. The stout woman [illegible] always wear what are known as "union" garments, such as are made in one [illegible] from to heel, fitting the upper part of the body closely and with no [illegible] or belts or [illegible] at the waist-line. The shapeless [illegible] should be an abomination to her, adding bulk which is bulk to be dreaded. A dress fitted with few lines to support the bust [illegible] for the day, and when the dress is assumed it [illegible] the [illegible] fleshy woman wear full [illegible] and light [illegible] clothes. [illegible] the outline. Make the underclothes smooth and trim fitting and then study [illegible] for the gown. The bodice of the fleshy woman's dress may fit snugly in the back, but in front it should disguise the actual size of bust and [illegible] with long, rather loose lines. A bodice with jacket [illegible] over it makes a good street style, and if quite full figured the bodice should be a full [illegible] of surah or soft silk. The whose figure is bad can't afford to display it. She must tone it down and [illegible] it by studying the beautiful effects [illegible] to be from [illegible] robes. [illegible] the long [illegible] and slenderizes [illegible] In order to induce the by-[illegible] to view her figure as a whole, not in detail.

Once dressed, the fleshy woman must [illegible] to walk. It is easy to see a fat woman who carries herself with physical refinement. Between the dress and standing on the feet the abdomen is forced into prominence. Take an erect position, then by a muscular effort lift the chest up and draw in the abdomen. You will find that the chest will go back in [illegible], the hips will turn inward and the [illegible] will [illegible] itself, all with one [illegible] forward in walking so that the weight will come on the balls of the feet and so that a line from the [illegible] would [illegible] the toes, and with a month's practice you can make yourself, not a [illegible], but a far more dignified and lithe figure, rid of protuberances.

So much for artistic [illegible]. If the victim of adipose wishes to go further and, instead of covering up, get rid of her [illegible], she has before her a far more [illegible] course of discipline. The first step is [illegible], she must be much in the [illegible] air, [illegible] her face of [illegible] and let the sunlight freely into her face. If she can manage it during her [illegible] vacation, she must take sun-baths. Chickens are fattened in the dark; sunlight apartments are [illegible] to obesity.

It is easy to say she must exercise. There are not [illegible] athletics in New York who are [illegible] walking walks of from [illegible] to [illegible] miles a day for their patients, which are no doubt useful to those who [illegible] physically able to take them. One or two of the athletics are experts to the climbing cure, and will domicile patients [illegible] the Catskills this summer, insisting [illegible] regular uphill work every day. Everybody [illegible] undoubtedly has a beneficial effect on [illegible], especially when brisk enough to produce copious perspiration, and when followed by a bath and vigorous rubbing. But [illegible] even if long continued it is unlikely to [illegible] an [illegible] in [illegible] a heavily loaded boat against [illegible] but if allowed to walk, and will [illegible] drawing an empty one with the [illegible] kept at a trot. The severe [illegible] prescribed for men who are [illegible] for races are out of the question for most corpulent women. My own or family physician has given [illegible] that there is no [illegible] walk, at as quick a pace and for as great a distance as strength will [illegible] Outdoor life, the health and [illegible] a valuable part of the corpulence cure.

But the [illegible] of nearly all systems is the [illegible] treatment. The flesh has been put on by eating and drinking and by eating and drinking it must be removed. Some specialists make this a matter of a year or two, instead of a few weeks or months as formerly, thus disposing forever of the "starvation cure." A woman who enormously obesity has not become [illegible] could probably nip her spreading proportions, so to speak, in the bud in [illegible] absolutely and forever all [illegible] as far as possible all sugar. She should eat any meat or fish which may suit her, and vegetables except that she should be very sparing of potatoes and [illegible]. But she should not eat pudding or pastry, substituting for them fruits stewed without sugar, or with very little, and jellies. She should be a little [illegible] about bread, preferring a rusk or a toasted slice to the fresh article. She should cultivate a taste for acids and [illegible], and if she eats oatmeal for her breakfast should take it in the Scotch fashion with milk and a little salt, but without sugar. She should not [illegible] tea or coffee and should try to drink them without milk. She should not use much butter. By adapting herself persistently to such a regimen and taking a Turkish bath twice a month she would probably vanquish her arch enemy.

The woman who is already obese will usually find a more rigid diet not too severe. A very usual modification of the Ebstein system prescribed for fleshy New York is about as follows: Avoid the hydrocarbons, that is the starches and sugars, but comfort yourself for the privation by eating fat, as in butter, as you please. Eat fat or lean meat, ham, pork or lamb, beef, any fish desired. Eat no potatoes in any form, but substitute peas, spinach, asparagus and cabbage. Do not eat onions or any breakfast cereal. Do not often touch carrots, beets or turnips. Do not be afraid of gravy. Do not use milk or cream except as flavored flavor, and do not eat bread except in small quantities. Eat three meals a day. A typical bill of fare for twenty-four hours would read as follows: Breakfast—Tea or coffee without milk or sugar. A small quantity of bread, butter, cold. Strawberries, [illegible] or other fruits [illegible]. Soup, any meat, plenty of vegetables, with butter if liked, [illegible] as above for lunch. Fruit, sour wine. Supper—Tea, [illegible] or fish, a little bread, [illegible] say twice a week, half. Never eat [illegible].

This diet will reduce flesh without impairing the health, taking off from [illegible] to twelve pounds in the course of a year. The anti-fat enthusiasts of whom there are many among fashionable women, go much beyond the Ebstein system. A [illegible] requiring [illegible] lution to adhere to in the case first given, as for [illegible] enough [illegible], but allowing only two instead of three meals a day. Banishing the four meals but women are easily in causes. The most Spartan diet advocated is [illegible], four, [illegible] to [illegible] an occasional case fails to yield to number [illegible]. It sets the limit of meals for the day at two, but does not limit the amount to be eaten. It [illegible] the food as strictly as [illegible] to nitrogen, as elements and is [illegible] a [illegible] cure. It allows all lean meat to be eaten, and any fish except [illegible]. It forbids tea and coffee all [illegible]. It forbids potatoes, sugar, [illegible] also on [illegible], rice, [illegible] etc., [illegible] and [illegible]. It allows no bread, unless once a week, stale, no butter, no fat of any kind. To inquirers about substitutes for bread and potatoes it must be answered that cabbage, cauliflower, asparagus, etc., are [illegible] the [illegible] by, raw cabbage, cabbage one of the best [illegible]. Fruit enters largely into the system raw or stewed without sugar. It is good for a loss of eight pounds a [illegible], or four pounds at a later [illegible]. [illegible] who follow it combine the dieting with [illegible], [illegible], daily baths, and occasional Turkish baths, and fall back on [illegible] one or two weeks nearly in fighting trim. Soft wines are allowed in any of the dietaries.

Does flesh reduction pay? If the German [illegible] dietaries are right in claiming that flesh is a disease and possibly [illegible] to other [illegible], possibly [illegible] weight—the body [illegible], and more [illegible] the grave doth [illegible]. For the thinks wider than for [illegible] men.

Says Shakespeare. The specialists say that in twenty-five years the first thing a physician will do for an [illegible] client suffering from any disease will be to get rid of his [illegible] pounds.

An Appeal for Aid.

The Woman's Aid society at their last meeting appointed the following solicitors to canvass our city and secure memberships to the society: Mrs J. F. Humphrey, Mrs F. H. Buckman, Mrs D. Arnold, Miss Lois Barnes, Mrs C. A. Eldridge and Mrs Will Tenney. May we not confidently hope that these ladies will be cordially received? The funds at our disposal fall far short of what we need. Twenty-five dollars constitutes life membership, $5 annually, honorary membership, and $1 annual membership. We feel that it is the duty of every member of the community to block such an organization or association, and in this way at least, "consider the poor." If the ladies who cannot attend our meetings would pay the annual membership fee of $1 it would increase the funds of our treasury and no one would miss the dollar.

Remember the inspired word says: "Blessed is the man that considereth the poor" with this promise added: "The Lord will deliver him in time of trouble."

FISHING IN NEW JERSEY.

I Am Introduced to the Land of Apple-Jack and Fed Upon Pie.

Billy Buttons Shows Me Some Farmer Shakes's Self-Acting Trout and I Blunderingly Succeed.

By Mr. Shakes.

(Copyright 189[illegible].)

I had [illegible] Billy and didn't know a [illegible] Hungry savages, except [illegible], and I told Billy Buttons, when he asked me to go with him.

"Never mind Hungry," said he, "you'll be useful when we come back."

I didn't know what he meant by that, and he would give no explanation except that he had to see some of his stories.

We went down into New Jersey. It was a long, tedious ride, and Billy was glad of it because he could carry everything without getting [illegible]. Billy is very considerate of his feelings. Oh, how balmy it was! The trees were green, and the mosquitoes were not yet ripe. We found a little babbling brooklet. It passed modestly through the meadows quite unnoticed because it was water.

HE HAD BEEN FISHING AHEAD OF US.

[illegible] If it had been apple-jack the bears would have been the angels [illegible] that was the way a local philosopher [illegible] for the farm.

Billy Barton was a great fisherman as he told the many times before we began to fish, and once or twice after we began. We took [illegible] the banks of the brooklet. It was much deeper on the banks than it was in the middle of the stream but Billy did not mind it because he had a pair of rubber boots on that fastened clear up to his neck. I had an old pair which Billy had kindly loaned me, and though, as I have said, the banks were wetter than the [illegible], it is a [illegible] fact that the [illegible] of Billy's old boots were wetter than either. They had an attraction for moisture and I could hear it [illegible] in with a dull, sickening sizzle every time I lifted up my feet.

Although the stream was in the [illegible] so shallow that an American built trout could not sail in it with its center board down, there were places here and there where it was deep. I know, for I fell [illegible] into one of them. Billy said that the trout lived in these pools. I did not doubt his word but it [illegible] to me that a trout who could have had the whole Atlantic Ocean to swim in, would choose to live in a place where he couldn't turn around without knocking [illegible] thing down but Billy is a fish-farm, and he ought to know.

We wandered up the stream and Billy cast his line into the quiet pool when I didn't fall into three before he got a chance. I usually cast my line, too, but it was into the branches of a tree, and then I [illegible] my life. But I caught as much as Billy did, in fact, I caught more, for he could not area book snags. He began to explain to me that certain atmospheric conditions combined with the absence of fish would foil the efforts of the most skillful angler.

In the course of a few hours of arduous toil we arrived at a little clearing on the edge of which was an unpretentious log cabin, just adding a good sized trout to a full string. Billy looked at the string and [illegible] thoughtfully.

"So it was you boys, that I heard behind me, was it?" he said. "Well, well; you didn't catch nothin' I see. Reckon I must have pulled the trout out in their holes just as I got to you."

It was painfully evident that he had, and Billy's face [illegible] not deeply delighted he was at the idea.

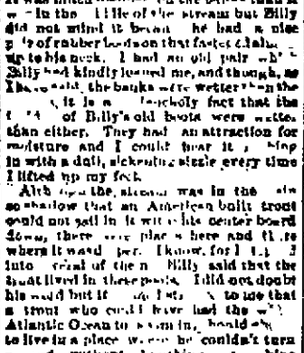
"You going up any further?" asked Billy.

"No, I ain't goin' no further," said the farmer.

We continued on our way. It was just as much fun as there could have been to us do, and no more. We didn't get a bite. Then we came back again, and I fell into all the holes I had discovered on my way up, and several new ones. About 3.30 p.m. we reached a farm house. By this time we were both hungry enough to eat anything we could bite, for I had lost our lunch early in the day. The owner of the farm house presented his card. It was engraved on the barn door in yellow paint.

JAMES M. SHAKES.

I did not know whether the middle initial stood for mosquitoes or malaria, but I knocked at the door of the house, and inquired for Mr. Shakes. His son Jimmie came out, and [illegible] the old man ap-



DOWNING THE PIE.

[illegible] He [illegible] German who had pulled all the trout out of the brook ahead of us.

"Oh, got back already?" said he [illegible] fully.

"How long did you think we'd be?" said Billy.

"Why, I thought you would go up stream till you came to a [illegible] and have got back to [illegible]. Where's Shakes?" "Because [illegible] any [illegible] than where [illegible] any [illegible] Brailsford?" said I.

"Why, I don't you tell us so, you old Brailsford?" said I.

"I did at first," he replied placidly. "He's behind [illegible]."

"Well, I [illegible] but mother's baked a pie. We [illegible] the same in the house [illegible] a dollar, and [illegible] down to the pond. [illegible] from [illegible] that I can't get [illegible] you can catch him."

"Well, I would [illegible]," said Billy brightening up. "Just bring out your pie and I'll show you a few points about fishing."

We left the pie, and [illegible] to look us down to the pond. It was a muddy little hole that Jimmie had made by damming a branch of the stream. There was a little sluice gate at the [illegible] which the water could be let out. It didn't look like a good fishing prospect. Any high minded trout would have sent out and walked, sooner than live there. It by said as much when he saw it.

"But there's a trout in it," said old Shakes, "a big one, too. I saw him this afternoon."

"I don't believe it," said Billy, and he walked up to the pond [illegible] ducked down on the ground in a hurry. "Yes, there is, too, by Gosh!" he whispered. "I saw him, myself, right in the middle."

Then we got out the line and made a graceful and [illegible] cast. But the trout didn't rise. He tried it several times, but the surface of the pool was unstirred except by the fly.

"You might try grasshoppers," suggested little Jimmie; "the trout around these parts is powerful fond of grasshoppers."

Billy sent me to catch one, and I roamed all over four quarter sections without finding any. When I came back Old Shakes consoled me by saying that they were rather scarce at that time of year. Then Billy suggested worms, and I went out behind the barn and dug up a rare and beautiful collection. Billy wouldn't fly one till the trout had got over his scare at the fly.

Meanwhile we were getting hungry again, and Old Shakes went to the house and found one more pie which we bought for a dollar and a half. After that we [illegible] he found another with which he consented to part for the sum of two dollars. He said it was positively the last pie in that part of New Jersey.

Then Billy tried his worms after [illegible] up to the [illegible] and the [illegible] fly, himself and the trout had not [illegible] away.

"Darned if he isn't in the same place," said Billy. "He's the most aggravating trout I ever did see."

He continued to be as aggravating as he dare for he wouldn't rise for the worms. Old Shakes said he didn't like the fly and I suggested that we might put on some pie if it wasn't so expensive. Then we remembered the old man that perhaps "mother" had found another. So he went up to the house and got it. We bought it for three dollars to keep him good natured. Then Billy said that the sun was too high to catch trout, but if we waited till evening we could have better luck. We went up to the house and waited. At the end of two hours we tried it again.

"I'll catch that trout," said Billy, "if I have to camp out here for a week."

WHY THAT TROUT WOULD NOT RISE.

"This would be about two hours and dot lara agoing by the end of that time," I ventured to say, by way of [illegible].

"Don't you worry," said Billy. "The sun's got low enough, and he'll bite at anything. I'll have him out here in a jiffy."

We approached the pool. Something had evidently happened to it in our absence. There was no pool there; only the hole through which a little stream trickled. In the Jimmie Shakes had pulled up the sluice gate, and let the water out. The sight of it made Billy [illegible]. He said it was a mean advantage to take of a fisherman. Then he said [illegible] thing [illegible] a great deal [illegible] I could hardly blame him on a closer inspection for in the middle of what had been the [illegible] was a stiff [illegible] of pie planted in the bottom, and impaled upon it was the trout. He had been dead for some time, and his calmness was accounted for. It was [illegible] by a scheme to sell pie, which little Jimmie had curtailed in its operation, because he was anxious to see the fun. He was doubtless up in the barn making a noise that would have developed into a laugh in a more healthful atmosphere than that of New Jersey.

"Say," called out Old Shakes from the [illegible] pie, and—"

Billy interrupted him very suddenly but the [illegible] table fakir did not go where Billy told him to at least, not immediately.

The Storm.

KANSAS CITY, May 30.—The storm of Tuesday was general over Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska. Nearly all the telegraph poles along the Southern Kansas railroad were blown down and in the southern part of Iowa and in northern Kansas there were many overflows. The trains on many roads were delayed by washouts and land slides. The Chicago and Alton tracks in western Illinois were inundated and at Slater a heavy land slide occurred.

Reported Sale Denied.

NEW YORK, May 30.—The reported sale of Bechtel's brewery on Staten Island to an English syndicate is denied. It is said that only the option has been secured.

FASHIONS FOR CANINES.

SOME ARISTOCRATIC DOGS AND THEIR HARNESSES.

Not a Few of Them Have Collars Made of Their Mistresses' Hair—Mrs. Langtry's Mouse Collar—A Pug Novelties in Dining Dresses—Liberty Caps.

(Copyright.)

NEW YORK, May 23.—Recently I have received a number of letters from different ladies asking me to find out for them the newest fashionable collars and harness and I take pleasure in affording the desired information. I have made it my task to find out for them, though I have not yet had time to write during the week, which I could have seen a [illegible]. This question is such a [illegible] that it should not be lightly [illegible].

[illegible] the last place the big dogs have [illegible] and heavy [illegible] by which [illegible] drag [illegible] of farmers [illegible] to lady [illegible] more rapid [illegible] graceful. [illegible] the even have [illegible] rope, but this is not exactly the [illegible] fashion except [illegible] with the rope is made of strands of hair cut from the young lady's own head. I am not quite sure that any of them really cut off their hair for that purpose, but some of them do have the combings made up into strands and set in the collar of their darling, adored angel pets of dogdom. I have obtained [illegible] of the collars of three famous dogs who have the honor to belong to famous ladies.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION.

The bottom one is the collar worn by Mrs. Langtry's little pug, a mouse colored creature with a [illegible] head. Mrs Langtry's ink, and so tip tilted that you could hang a hat on it. The band is of blue velvet with gold bells, and a gold [illegible] plate in front with the angel's name on it. Here it is "Pedro." The one at the top belongs to Mrs. Frank Leslie's little black and tan "Zulu." The collar is red morocco, with gold bells and clasp. This little dog is not as [illegible] as his pretty mistress, but is [illegible] mixed nevertheless and has over $100 worth of jewelry of her own in shape of collars and bracelets.

The second collar belongs to Mrs. George Gould's "Tocsin," the smallest, fattest and laziest dog in existence. He has but one fault. He is a parasite, a millionaire pug, and turns his up at every dog less fortunate. His present collar is of ruby velvet, studded with jewels.

The pug with the harness is a fancy sketch and only to show the new harness. Lazy Susies embroider them very prettily.

NEWEST WATCHED BELT.

Besides the ruby, [illegible] jerseys are blouses of every description made of jersey cloth and others of surah, pongee and wash silk. The surah blouses are in dark blue, red, brown, cotton, beige and figured goods. It is a great boon to be able to buy these all ready made and beautifully fitted, as few can sew well enough or give the style. These come in gold edge and will be sold in all first class stores in America.

The sailor blouses here are only suitable for mountain climbing, yachting, or the seaside, or any active outdoor occasion where plain dressing is necessary. These made of jersey cloth are very pretty and durable, but not so good or cool as those in the pongees and other silks. Blouses in navy blue and the wash silks will be worn very much by little boys and even men for summer. I could not get the exact price of them, but think they will cost about a dollar and a half to three dollars apiece, according to size and work.

Among some of the novelties for outing dresses I noticed special style of pongee in beige and dark blue and white, all made in the same style, viz.: a straight full skirt with a flat tucked and stitched on with feather stitch in contrast. A wide fringed out and knotted sash finished each—the blouse laced up the front.

BASE BALL

The C ... Springs Club Wins a Hard ... from Leadville

The audience at the ball game yesterday afternoon was the largest ever drawn upon these grounds. Every seat was taken and hundreds stood outside the lines or had seats in carriages. It is safe to say that not a person was disappointed in the playing by either team for the game was one of the hardest, up to the eighth inning, ever played here. The playing was simply beautiful. Every man on the home team played his position in a manner seldom seen even in the big ... in the east. The errors were very few on both sides and most of them were made by the players making numerous efforts to handle the ball. Hendricks pitched an almost perfect game. He struck out four men and sent one man to first by striking him with the ball. The most creditable part of his work is the fact that he did not send a man to first on balls. He was struck for seven base hits. Wilson behind the bat did unusually good work. Fitzgerald and Lohman for the Leadville club also did good work. Fitzgerald sent six men to first on balls, struck out six and was struck for nine base hits. The fielding of the Leadville club was hardly as good as that of the Springs. They were somewhat weakened by the sickness of R ... ll, who was compelled to retire at the end of the second inning. Ferguson, of this city, took his place and did very good work, particularly at the bat, where he was stronger, probably, than R ... ll. In the seventh inning he broke the ice by bringing in a run and putting the Leadville one run ahead.

Lytle, P. Lynch and Valelly were the ... batters on the Springs side. P. Lynch made a three base hit in the eighth inning and was heartily applauded. The audience went wild with delight when he came home and placed the Colorado Springs ... one run ahead.

The double plays made by the Springs displayed ball playing that was simply ... There were four made on the home side and none by the visitors. Wonderful ... among the audience as the double plays were made. F ... more difficult than the one preceding and the way the ball was handled brought forth yell after yell of delight.

Five of the runs scored by the Springs were earned and one by Leadville. The ... club ... to send the ball just where the Leadville fielders could not reach it.

Frank Johnson umpired the game. His work was very good, in fact it was the best umpiring he has done on the ... The ... decisions were numerous and he displayed excellent judgment in all.

The Springs ... first at bat. Lytle ... to first on balls but was caught at second. Glenalvin knocked a sky scraper, which was caught by Bailey. N... followed with a fly to Voegtle. ... three men out. The Leadvilles then came to the plate and were quickly retired. Whyte and L ... being hit out on flies and Hughes striking out. This ended the inning with no scores on either side.

In the second, Valelly opened with a hit ... hit in center field, went to third on ... balls and scored the first run of the game on J. A. Lynch's grounder. McMahon ... to first on balls. J. A. Lynch ... on errors, both being left on bases at the close of the inning. P. Lynch and Wilson struck out. Hendricks reached first on balls, and Lytle sent a ball to the left infield where it was stopped in time to catch Hendricks. Ball ... for the visitors by sending a ball to Newman on left, who made a difficult and pretty stop. When Bailey tried to steal ... Whyte made a beautiful throw and cut him off. C ... followed with a base hit. Voegtle knocked a ball to ... and where Glenalvin stopped it and sent it to first, making a ... play.

When the third inning opened Ferguson was put on the field in place of Russell. Glenalvin and Newman were caught at first, Valelly made a base hit and was left on base and McMahon was ... out by Bailey. The visitors were retired by Bailey knocking a fly to Valelly, Fitzgerald striking out and Ferguson being caught at first.

J. A. Lynch opened the fourth inning and was sent to first on balls but was caught at ... P. Lynch drove a fly to center, and Wilson and Hendricks struck out. Whyte was caught at first. Lohman drove a three bagger to right and ... in on Hughes' ball to short. Bailey was hit by the pitcher and went to first. Cooley drove a ball to P. Lynch who ... it to Glenalvin and made a double play.

Fifth inning. Lytle went to first on balls and was caught at second by Bailey. ... Glenalvin's ball Newman drove a ball past second and reached first. Valelly was caught out and McMahon was caught at first. Voegtle sent a fly to J. A. Lynch. Blake reached first on a grounder and was followed by Ferguson who knocked a ball to P. Lynch who ... it to Glenalvin and made the third double play. Fitzgerald followed with a long fly to McMahon on left.

J. A. Lynch was first at bat in sixth inning. He was caught at first as was also P. Lynch. Wilson was caught out. Whyte made a base hit. Lohman was caught at first. Hughes struck out and Bailey was caught at first.

In the seventh inning three Springs men were left on bases. Hendricks was put out on a foul. Lytle made a base hit. ... Valelly reached ... first on ... and McMahon sent a ball to second, where Valelly was caught, and was caught at first. Cooley made a base hit. Voegtle knocked a fly to Glenalvin who held it and sent it to first and made a double play. This was a beautiful play. Blake made a two bagger and was followed by ... who knocked the ball to center and brought him home. Fitzgerald was caught out by Valelly.

In the eighth inning J. A. Lynch knocked a grounder to center, stole second, went to third on errors and came home on a passed ball. P. Lynch made the hit of the game by driving the ball for ... He scored on Hendricks ... Wilson was retired on strikes. Lytle made a base hit and Glenalvin was caught out by Whyte. Whyte went out on a foul caught by Wilson. Lohman was caught out by P. Lynch and Hughes closed the inning by striking out.

In the ... Newman drove a fly to center and ... Valelly ... and was ... Whyte ... hit to left. McMahon brought Newman home on a ... hit and stole second. J. A. Lynch reached third on a hit and brought in Valelly and M. Mahon. He scored on P. Lynch's ... Wilson struck out. Hendricks made a sacrifice and Lytle was caught ... The visitors opened with Bailey, who was caught out. Cooley reached ... on an error, went to third on Wilson's passed ball and came home on Voegtle's base hit. Blake knocked a hard to short where P. Lynch stopped it, sent it to second and made a double play at first.

The game would have been forfeited by the Leadvilles had not Manager Goddard courteously allowed them to find a substitute among the audience. The rules compel a club to have ten men on the ground and this the Leadvilles did not have. This treatment will probably be appreciated by the visitors. The following is the official score:

Mr James T. Emery, the wholesale grocer of Kansas City, is stopping at the Barker with his wife. They will spend a portion of the season in Manitou.

A party of five gentlemen capitalists from Kansas, whose names will be found below among the Barker arrivals, are busily investigating the situation of real estate in this region.

After the parade yesterday the Fire department endeavored to perform a feat which might have ended in a far more serious accident. Starting in front of the Barker house they came down the avenue on the full run. The men on the tongue were unable to check the speed of the cart which broke away from them rushing down the grade into the leaders as well. Several of the men were thrown to the ground and one or two badly bruised but none seriously injured, while the cart will be off duty for several days.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

MANITOU, May 30 1886.

Dr. W. M. Beard and Mrs. Emma Vale arrived in the Springs on Decoration day. The doctor and his fair companion report the excursion as being highly enjoyable and they enjoyed the trip otherwise.

Frank Conway who has been attending to the affairs of his brother, the late T. J. Conway, left this morning for Kingston Ontario Canada where he is assistant general passenger and freight agent for the Kingston and Pembroke railway.

The telephone company have a large force of men putting up new poles along the line at this place. The new poles have double brackets which will greatly facilitate the sending and receiving of messages at this point as well as from other points. This improvement will be greatly appreciated at Monument as communication over the wires was at times impossible owing to the vast amount of business conducted over the two wires that have served as means of transmission of messages heretofore.

Monument has a social club organized for the purpose of enjoyment, advancement, and social intercourse. Each member agreed to pay a specified sum weekly for the expenses of the club. No profane language is to be tolerated. The club room is in the Donohue block. A billiard table has been placed there and other means of enjoyment and amusement will be obtained as soon as possible. The officers are: Chief, Will Lierd; secretary, Arthur B. Baldwin, directors, C. D. Ford and F. W. Dustin. The members of the club pledge themselves to "in no wise insult one another, or any visitor while in their rooms and that they will not have any intoxicating beverage, tobacco smoke or any immoral house or thing connected with their organization." Under such government as the foregoing our "unit" club will prosper.

"The temperature has risen [illegible] of an inch.

T. W. [illegible] Signal Corps.

A number of private picnics were held yesterday.

Judge S. Decker last night married Miss Lelia Randall and Mr. Virgil King, both of this city.

Mr. J. J. McCurdy, of the GAZETTE news room, left last night for Glenwood Springs for a short sojourn.

F. W. Walker, holding ticket No. 572, won the gold watch at the Midland excursion last night, which he can obtain by presenting the ticket.

Reserved seats are now on sale at popular prices for the engagement of Reilly and Woods big specialty show at the opera house to-morrow evening.

Mr. Amos Anderson left last night for Galveston to join the engineer corps of the Texas road, which is to be extended [illegible] will be active [illegible].

To-morrow will see plenty of fun at the Athletic grounds when the amateur clubs play ball for the benefit of the home team. The games are for fun but the boys say we will "play for blood" and don't you forget it.

Lieutenant Duncan Bell, returning from a pleasure trip to Canada, was injured in a new location of the Burlington railroad. He sued the road for damages so successfully that yesterday "Balm of Gilead" in the shape of an $681 check came to cheer him.

John Arnold took a header from his bicycle Wednesday night, breaking his right wrist and spraining the left one. Yesterday he rode, with the cavalry and in an effort to act in his capacity as bugler and manage a refreshment house at the same time, succeeded in completely fracturing his wrist.

Reilly and Woods refined [illegible] specialty performance will be given at the opera house to-morrow evening. The company embraces some of the best variety talent of the United States, and the account engagement at the Bush street theatre was the most successful known in the dramatic history of San Francisco. The chief feature of the entertainment is the trapeze work of the celebrated Vaidis sisters, undeniably among the greatest artists of the world.

The [illegible] of the Hook and Ladder, Matt France, and Cornell hose companies, in charge of Chief Parris and Foreman Burns, decorated the graves of several deceased members yesterday. The graves of Doctor Barre and Thomas Finn were decorated with handsome floral emblems, [illegible] Hagerman's lot. Alderman Sprague delivered an appropriate address. In the afternoon the grave of John Hogan at West Colorado Springs cemetery was decorated. Messrs. Beasley, Scott, Smith and others delivered the addresses.

There has been considerable speculation among the base ball enthusiasts in regard to the merits of Colorado Springs new pitcher, Dicks. He certainly has good curves and fair speed, and if he has control will without doubt do effective work. In to-day's game Dicks and Lytle will be the battery for the home team, and Voegtle and [illegible] for the Leadville's. The following is a list of the players and their positions:

Voegtle	[illegible]	Dicks.
